

Import and Export Code

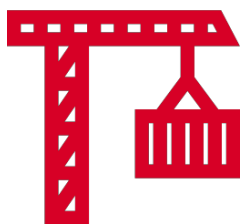

ABOUT IMPORT AND EXPORT CODE

IEC Stands for Import and Export Code. The registration for IEC code required for those organizations/entities who are dealing in importing or exporting goods and services from/to India.

It is a 10 Digit unique code issued by directorate general of foreign trade (DGFT) of commerce and industries ministry of government of India. Recently, GOI announced PAN shall be work as IEC code in order to enhance the ease of doing business subject to registration.

IEC is valid for lifetime that means once issued can be used by the business entity throughout the existence of the entity and there is no renewal or filing issue.

As per foreign trade policy in India, every importer and exporter is required to get IEC code to start import and export from India. Without IEC, no importer and exporter are authorised to do import and export business.

BENEFITS OF IEC

1) Unlocking the international market

Since the IE Code is a mandatory requirement for import and export business, it allows entities to have their reach to the international market.

2) Competitive edge over local market

Doing business internationally gives you a competitive edge in the local market. Help you fetch a additional business in the name of your product international presence.

3) Lifetime validity

One of the key features of Import Export Code is that it has a validity of lifetime i.e. a business entity may entertain its benefits till the time it exists.

4) Export incentives

Government of India with the help of Export Promotion Council promotes export business and reward various kind of incentives, duty drawback, MEIS, SEIS, refund of taxes paid in India doing the manufacturing of the goods exported. Incentives shall be granted based on IE code of exporter.
